

PowerPlay

Enriched music classes especially for home schoolers

Small group setting makes classes more affordable

- 4-6 students per class
- Classes are limited to one or two school grade levels for directed teaching.
- See your Home School Association Fine Arts Coordinator for cost, location and times. Or contact Creek Crossing Music Studio. If needed, classes will be formed of students from multiple home school associations.

Real piano skills

- Music reading
- Solid piano technic
- The theory behind the music
- Developing skills in playing by ear
- Musicianship – not just notes

Weekly hour-long classes allow time for the playing and the bookwork

- Group playing of the assigned pieces brings encouragement, accountability and motivation.
- Grade leveled workbooks meet requirements of the Texas Music Teachers Association theory guidelines.

Ensemble and solo playing increases the enjoyment

- Classes are held on high quality keyboards. Headphones allow individual practice at times when the instructor needs to work with students one-on-one.
- “Beginning to end without stopping.” It’s the goal of practice and the requirement of performance. Ensemble playing builds it like nothing else. Solo performances are made better as a result.

Periodic mini-recitals for parents

- Share in the success and encourage the efforts of live performances.

Activities and learning games to keep the class time moving

- Fun educational activities take advantage of the class setting.

Degreed, experienced instructor

- Graduate studies in music at Southern Methodist University, Bachelor of Music Education
- Piano instructor, performer and church musician for over 15 years
- Former classroom school teacher
- Husband and father of three home schooled children

Reserve your spot! Daytime classes are forming now for the spring term.

Call Jerry Cornish at 972-571-3958

Write to jerry@creekcrossingmusic.com

Visit www.CreekCrossingMusic.com